EDINBURGH:
PRINTED FOR THE SCOTTISH BURGH RECORDS SOCIETY

MDCCCLXIX.

Colston & Son, Printers,
Edinburgh.

THE SCOTTISH BURGH RECORDS SOCIETY.

THE value of the early Records of the Burghs of Scotland, as throwing light upon national life and manners, explaining national institutions, and illustrating social progress, has been fully recognised, and can scarcely be exaggerated. Some of the Book Clubs, which have contributed so much to the elucidation of Scottish History, have already directed their attention to these Records. The Spalding Club has given the country a peculiarly interesting and valuable series of extracts from the Records of the Burgh of Aberdeen, while the Maitland Club has published notices from the Records of Dysart, and extracts from the Burgh Records of Glasgow, Prestwick, Edinburgh, and Canongate. Apart, however, from what has been done in regard to Aberdeen, it cannot be said that much more has been effected than merely to break ground in the direction of investigating and publishing extracts from the Burgh Records of Scotland; and as nothing more is now to be hoped from the Book Clubs which still exist, this Society has been formed for the special purpose of undertaking the work.

Besides extracts from the Burgh Records, copies of the Charters of Burghs and illustrative Extracts from contemporary local Records will be given, as far as may be considered desirable.

The annual subscription is One Guinea, payable in advance, on the 1st day of January. The first subscription was payable on 1st January 1868.

The Extracts from the Records of each Burgh will, as far as the Committee consider expedient, be issued separately, and without adhering to any prescribed order.

As affording a key to much that is to be found in the Records of the Burghs, and as generally illustrative of municipal institutions in Scotland, the Committee resolved to publish, in early volumes of the series, the Laws of Scotland relating to the Burghs, down to the accession of James VI. to the crown of England, and probably to the union of the two kingdoms. In pursuance of this design, they have already issued a volume containing the Laws of the Four Burghs, and the old Laws relating to the Burghs, from the earliest period of record till the return of James I. to Scotland in 1424. The editing of that work, and the preparation of the introductory historical sketch of the Burghs prefaced to it, were undertaken by Professor COSMO INNES, who has also undertaken the editing of the second volume, which is now passing through the press.

A volume of Extracts from the oldest Records of the City of Edinburgh, extending from 1403 till 1428, and including all that is now known to exist of the burghal legislation of the capital during that period, will be in the hands of the members in the course of next month. It was originally intended that this volume should come down to the commencement of the regular series of the records of the Town Council in 1551, but the extent of the material rendered it necessary to reserve the extracts subsequent to 1528 for a second volume, which is in the press, and will, it is expected, be issued about the middle of the year.

The Corporation of Edinburgh has recently authorised the transcription and printing, for its own purposes, of its oldest Charters and other muniments, and has generously allowed the Scottish Burgh Records Society to print off copies for the use of the members of the Society. That volume, containing Charters from 1143 to 1428, will be ready for issue in two or three months.

The publication of a selection of Extracts from the oldest Records of the Burghs of Peebles and of Haddington, will be proceeded with as speedily as possible, and selections from the earliest Records of other Burghs are being prepared.

The Committee have to acknowledge with thanks the liberality of the Corporation of Edinburgh in voting a grant of £25 towards defraying the cost of transcribing and printing the first volume of extracts from its Records.

They have also to acknowledge with special satisfaction the spontaneous vote by the Convention of the Royal Burghs of Scotland to the Society of the sum of £50. That ancient Institution has the merit of having been the first among the public bodies of the kingdom, so far as the Committee are aware, to undertake at its own cost the publication of its important records. The Convention has also evinced a warm interest in the records of the Royal Burghs, and has called the attention of the local authorities to the importance of having these records properly arranged and inventoried, with a view to their preservation, and to their being made accessible for purposes of local and general history. The active sympathy and co-operation of such a Body, and the support already received from those Burghs which have joined the Society, are most encouraging to the Committee. They venture to express the hope that, as the objects of the Society become more widely known, it will receive such additional support as will enable the Committee to prosecute their operations more vigorously.

It is requested that all who are disposed to further the prosecution of this project, will be so good as to intimate their subscriptions as early as possible to the Secretary or Treasurer.

PREFACE.

PREFACE.

THE present Volume contains all that is known to exist of what may be termed the Burghal Legislation of Edinburgh, previous to the 23d of May 1528, at which date King James the Fifth assumed the reins of government. It was originally intended that the volume should come down to the commencement of the regular series of the Council Records in 1551, but the materials were found to be too ample to admit of that, and what remains must be reserved.

The present volume also contains extracts from old records of the City, which, though not of the nature of burghal legislation, are valuable as illustrating the social life and habits of the burgesses, the municipal arrangements, and the financial condition of the Scottish capital in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

The materials for the work have been mainly gathered from the following sources :—

(1.) A volume in the archives of the City, numbered as the first of the series of the Council Minute Books, and containing a miscellaneous collection of Acts and Ordinances by the civic authorities, and other documents, transcribed from earlier records not now existing. The contents are not chronologically arranged, but some of the entries go back as far as 1456. The volume is intituled,—"Breuis et Compendiosa Collectio veterum et maxime vtilium statutorum; ex antiquis libris curiæ Edinburgi." The collection appears to have been made about 1580, and all that it contains previous to 23d May 1528 is included in this work.

(2.) A volume of extracts from old records of the Burgh, many of which are not now extant. This volume is preserved in the Advocates' Library, and is marked 34 : 4 : 9. Its contents embrace a period extending from 1403 till 1579, and are arranged, not chronologically, but under a number of general heads. The collection appears to have been made about the time of its latest date, viz., 1579, and every entry in it previous to 23d May 1528 is given in the present volume.

(3.) A volume in the archives of the City, numbered as the first of the Register of Burgesses and Guild Brethren. It commences on 17th May 1487, and ends on 12th February 1579. All the Acts and Ordinances relating to the conditions of burgess-ship and guild brotherhood, previous to May 1528, are given in the present collection.

(4.) The Protocol Books of John Foular and Vincent Strathauchin, Depute Town-Clerks and Notaries of the Burgh. From these Protocol Books, which are preserved in the archives of the City, a selection has been made of entries which seemed to possess general interest, as throwing light on the history of the Burgh or on the habits of the citizens.

(5.) A volume in the archives of the City, intituled "Ane Inventar of the whole wreats belonging to the Citie of Edinburgh, conteaning ther whole lands, customes, and priuiledges perteaning to theme; collected and digested be Maister Alexander Guthrie, Commone Clark to the said Citie, as they are conteaned in severall boxes of thair cabinetts presentlie sett up in thair chartour house." This Inventory bears to have been prepared in 1638.

(6.) A volume in the archives of the City, intituled "Inventory of Writs relating to the City, removed from the Charter-house to the Town-Clerk's office in 1653."

(7.) The Inventory of the Writings in the Charter-house of the City, consisting of six large folio volumes.

(8.) Original Seals of Cause granted by the Magistrates and Council to the various Incorporations, so far as these documents are still existing, and access could be got to them. Several of these are recorded in the volumes first and second above referred to; but where access could be had to the originals, the print has been carefully collated with them.

It is much to be regretted that the Charters and Records of these old Incorporations are not more accessible. They contain not only an immense amount of curious and valuable information as to the life of the craftsmen and the general history of the City, but are invaluable as authoritative sources of information in regard to family history. The founders of no inconsiderable number of influential houses of the present day were craftsmen and merchants in Edinburgh; and it might form the subject of a legitimate ambition on the part of the members of the existing Incorporations, to have the records illustrative of their ancient history arranged and placed in safe repositories, where, subject to proper supervision, the genealogical or historical inquirer might have reasonable facilities for examining them.

No one could wish or expect to have access to modern documents connected with the private affairs of the Incorporations; and regulations could easily be adopted to prevent any improper or ungrateful use of the ancient records of these bodies. It is to be feared, however, that the possibility of such abuse has operated against the carrying out, ere now, of some such measure as is here suggested. Presuming to some extent on his official position, the Editor of the present volume ventured in 1864 to call the attention of the office-bearers of the several Incorporations to the importance of their ancient records, and to suggest that they should, as far as possible, be deposited in a central place for safe preservation, subject, if thought desirable, to the exclusive control of the respective bodies. His communication was in every case received most courteously, and if it did not immediately effect its object, it has not been wholly unproductive of good. The Editor has the gratification to know that, under the public-spirited direction of Convener Field, the Convenery are taking active steps to induce the several Incorporations to have their records arranged and properly preserved.

The Editor has to express his thanks to the Deacons and Clerks of the several Incorporations, whose Seals of Cause are printed in the present volume, for the uniform courtesy with which they allowed inspection of their earliest charters. In only one case was the request declined, obviously under a misapprehension, which the publication of the present volume may help to remove, if, indeed, it has not already been dissipated by the good offices of the Committee of the Convenery.

In editing the present volume, reference has occasionally been made to Charters of the Burgh, and these have sometimes been used in verifying and correcting the tariffs of tolls and customs, and fixing their precise dates. It has not been considered expedient, however, to insert in the present collection any of the more important Charters of the City. These Charters require volumes for themselves, and it is in the highest degree creditable to the Corporation, which has contributed to the cost of the present work, that it has also authorised the earliest of its muniments to be arranged, transcribed, and printed, with a view to publication in a form befitting their importance and interest. Many valuable charters and documents, illustrative of the history of the Capital, have entirely disappeared; the effacing fingers of time are obliterating others; and every year's delay is adding to the difficulty of the work. Meanwhile, a chronological abstract of the charters of the Burgh, and relative documents, prior to 1528, is given in an Appendix, in the hope that it may throw some light on much in the present volume that would otherwise be obscure.

A chronological list of the Lord Provosts, Magistrates, and Officers of the burgh, compiled by the Editor from the oldest and most authentic existing records, and extending from 1296 to 1528, is also appended. In that list notes of charters and other documents have been inserted, which, it is hoped, may prove serviceable to those interested in the history of Edinburgh. The list cannot be regarded as anything like complete; but it is given for what it is worth, and in the hope that other workers in the same field may kindly assist the Editor in supplementing it hereafter.

For the same reason, and in the like hope, there are appended lists of the Constables and Governors of the Castle, and of the Sheriffs of the County, of Edinburgh, so far as known, down to 1528. Lists of the Parliaments and General Councils of Scotland; of the Provincial Councils, &c., of the Scottish Clergy; and of the Conventions of the Royal Burghs of Scotland, held at Edinburgh previous to May 1528, are also appended.

The materials for a second volume of extracts from the Burgh Records of Edinburgh being complete, and in the hands of the printer, and the Corporation having generously consented to allow the Scottish Burgh Records Society to print, for the use of its members, the collection of the earliest Charters of the City which is now passing through the press, it has been considered advisable to postpone any historical Preface, so as to make it applicable both to the Charters and to the Burghal Records of the City.

A Table of Contents, stating the source from which every extract in the present volume is taken, is prefixed; and a Glossary, with a general Index, will be given with the second volume, which it is expected will be in the hands of the members in the course of three or four months.

[In an Inventory of Writs removed from the Charter House to the Town Clerk's Office in 1653, reference is made (p. 94) to a Charter, granted by King James the First, under his Great Seal, whereby the King, with the consent of the burgesses and merchants of Edinburgh, statuted and ordained that "in augmentatioun of the fabrik and reparatioun of the port or herberie of Leith, thair sould be vplifted ane certane tax or toll of all schippes and boites entering thairin." The Charter is said to have been granted at Dunfermline of the above date. It is not now, however, in the archives of the City; it does not appear in the Register of the Great Seal; nor does it seem to be referred to in any of the other Inventories of the Charters of the Burgh.

The allewint day of the monethe of Aprile the yeir of God j^{m} foure hundrethe auchtie and aucht yeiris. The quhilk day compeirit in jugement in the chalmer of the Tolbuith of Edinburgh in presens of richt nobill and worschipfull men Thomas Tod prouest for the tyme, George of Touris, James of Cubing, and Thomas of Yhare, bailleis, John Foular dene of gild, Johnne of Tuedy thesaurer, and the laif of the counsall of the toun and burgh of Edinburgh, compeirit and pressentit ane supplicatioun and bill of complaint Richard Furde, deykin of the fleshouris for the tyme, Robert Gray, Johnne Coky, John Malcolm eldar, Riche Grey, Androw Tait, Patrik Andersoun, John Malcolm younger, Adame Edgear, Androw Sillar, John of Fyfe, Johnne of Loche, John Towart, Robert Gilry, Dauid Johnstoun, Richard Phillop, Dauid Airth, Gilleis Ker, and vtheris, principall maisteris of the saidis fleshouris craft, desyrand of the saidis prouest bailleis and counsale of the toun that, considering the grit trubill and wexatioun that officeris haid of before tyme be the evill reull multitude of dyuerssis persouns vnhabill contenit in the burgh, [quha] sclander and blaspheme men of the toun and the haill craft throw evill payment and vther wrangous iniuris and deidis vsit amangis the craft, in grit hurt and preiudice of the toun and commoun profeit, that sic thingis micht be retreitit and reformeit be the prouest bailleis and counsall of the toun, with awyse of the deykin and principale maisteris of the craft, with sic statutis and rewlis and ordinance as the said craft thinkis expedient with awyse of the said toun. The quhilk bill of supplicatioun and complaint oppinlie red hard and sene be the saidis prouest baileis and counsall, thay thairwith, in absence of the craftismen, awysit and considerit the said bill, and fand it was profitabill and neidfull for the commoun proffeit that amangis them selffis, for the guid reule of the craft, at thai sould mak certane statutis, quhilk the guid toun with the deykin of the craft and the maisteris of the craft sould vse execute and pvneis the trespassouris as effeiris according to the lawis of this burgh. Than the said deykin and maisteris of the craft presentit to the saidis prouest baillies and counsale thair desyris statutis and rewlis, and caussit them in the Tolbuith to be red and vnderstandin, with the quhilkis the saidis prouest bailleis and counsall was awysit, and the tennour of them followis in this maner :—Imprimis. We the deykin and principale maisteris of the fleshouris craft within this burgh thinkis it expedient for the comoun proffeit that all vnfremen, laidis and boyis, vsand our craft be expellit thairfra bot gif he owthir wil be ane vomannis prenteis or ane feit man, gif he can wirk for certane yeiris, efter the tennour of the ald actis of the toun maid of before, sua that na man handill menis sustentatioun owther at his stok or vtherwayis but honestlie be the maister him selff or his seruand or prenteis allenarlie as effeiris, and nane vtheris vnder the pane of xl s. the tua pairt to be raisit be the officeris of the toun to the Kirk werk, and the thrid pairt to be raisit be the deykin of craft to the reparatioun of thair awin alter vnforgevin; and siclyk all the vnlawis of thair statutes vnderwritten beiris. Item, We think it expedient for the honour and honestie of fremen of this craft that ar of small substance, quhill God refresche them, that thairfor sic a burges bot na vther persoun marrow him with ane maister of substance, and lay his penny to his, and sua far as it will reik the pennyvorthis to be bocht betwixt them and thai to dele thairvpoun vyning and tynsell as effeiris, and sua far as ilk pairt reikis; and gif this fremen gettis credence in the cuntrey of ony stufe he to bring it to the guid toun and sell it oppinlie in the mercatt, the said fremen first fyndand souerty at the craft sall nocht be blasphemit throw his evill payment, nor yit the officeris of the toun to be wexit for administratioun of iustice, vnder the pane of xl s. for ane vnlaw to be disponit and raissit as first saidis be the officeris of the toun and the deykin of the craft for the tyme. Item, We think expedient that the deykin and best of the craft daylie serche the craft gif ony of them owther byis slais or sellis ony infectit fleshe or fishe with or keippis rottyn purit beistis, cassin or deid be the selff, or ony vther insufficient sustentatioun owther of fishe or fleshe; and quha that beis apprehendit thairwith to be depryuit of his fredome, the guid to be escheit to the seik folk in almous, and he to be baneist the toun and craft be the officiars at thair discretioun for euir mair. Item, We thinkit expedient that na freman of this craft dele nocht be pairtis man with ane vnfreman becumis his guidis vnder cullour of his awin contrair his aith, vnder pane of depriuand of his fredome and putting fra the craft and escheting of the stufe that he collouris. Item, That na fleshe be brokin nor sauld in hiddillis nor in bak houssis, bot oppinlie in the hie mercatt quhair it may be sene and sercheit be the deykin and the craft with ane officer of the toun, that the falt may be sene and pvneist, and the guides falteis to be escheit and delt; and siclyk quhair ony nolt hydis or ony vther infectit fleshe bene brokin to sell amangis guid stufe to the Kingis leidgeis that stufe to be escheit, and the persoun pvneist at the discretioun of the provest baillies and counsale, and be awyse of the deykin and the heidis men of the craft. Item, We think it expedient that na man of craft, candilmakeris nor vtheris, in tyme to cum, but fremenis soneis of the craft vse the craft, and that can handill it himselff baith in slaing and breking as a craftisman honestlie at his stok, and as [he] hes bene leirnit and brocht vp thairwith vnder a maister, vnder the pane of xl s. and escheitting of thair guidis assaid is and banysing of the craft. Item, we think it expedient that na man of this craft pas owtwith the toun nor send thair seruandis to by ony stufe, fishe or fleshe beif mwttoun veill lameis swyne nor kiddis fra Pashe to Mydsomer day, that all beistis may be in ply, vnder the pane of escheit; and gif a maister sendis his servand to landwart to feche ony beistis to sla at his maister has coft him selff, and nocht be his seruand under cwllour, he sall first certefie the deykin and vtheris maisteris of the craft that thai guidis was coft be the maister him selff, and nocht be the seruand, quhilk sall nocht haiff authoritie nether to by nor sell. Item, that na maister ressaue ane vther manis seruand or prenteis in seruise quhill the ishe of thair termes, and it be weryfeit to the deykin the tyme of his leive taking. Item, we think it expedient that ilk prenteis desire of the deykin and maister that lykis to vse the craft that first thai desire and obtene the fredome of the toun, and gif he [be] fund abill to be ressauit to the craf and to pay his dewteis to the craft and alter as efferis. Item, we think it expedient that the deykin serche all faltis and to pvneishe tua faltis, and the thrid falt to be pvneist be the toun with all rigour. Item, that na fleshe that hes [been] presentit [in] the mercatt tuyis and hes tynt the sessoun be put to the mercatt agane vnder the pane of escheit; nor yit that ony of our craft by ony fishe fra the vyffis nor regratours of the toun duelland in Leith. Item, that quhat persone of the craft dissobeyand the deykin in the vsing of his office foirsaid, that ane officer pas and pvneis his persoun as effeirs, and quha that beis obstinat to be put in ward quhill he amend the falt. The quhilk statutes and supplicatioun being red sene and vnderstand be the saidis provest bailleis and, counsale, thai fand the samyn consonand to ressoun, and for commoun proffeit and incressing of guid sheip fishe and fleshe, and gude reule in the toun, thai ratyfeit and appreuit the saymn in sa far as in them was in all thingis, according to the commoun proffeit, and in sua far with the help of God will autoreis the samyn. Pro Willelmo Ker.

[In the name of God, amen: Be it manifestly known to all men by this present public instrument, that in the year of the incarnation of our Lord one thousand five hundred and eight, on the eighth day of the month of June, in the eleventh Indiction, and fifth year of the pontificate of the most holy Father in Christ and our Lord by divine providence Pope Julius the Second, In presence of an honourable man William Goldsmith, water bailie of the town and port of Leith, belonging to the jurisdiction of the Burgh of Edinburgh, within the Kingdom of Scotland, sitting in judgment, in presence of me notary-public, and of the witnesses subscribing, personally compeared

in judgment Thomas Winter, pursuer on the one part, and William Kerr, defender on the other part, The said Thomas sued the said William for the unjust detention from him of ten lasts of salt of the town of Tralsound [Stralsund], which he bought from him in the said town of Tralsound, to be delivered here, within the kingdom of Scotland, twelve barrels full of pure salt for each last, free from payment of all expenses of freight and of all other costs whatever, the said Thomas paying for each barrel twelve shillings of Scotch money. And in respect of such contract, the said Thomas publicly delivered to the said William, in part payment, one French crown, amounting in value to fourteen shillings of Scotch money, as is asserted. In which case the foresaid William made offer that he would duly and legally answer and defend as accords with justice. At length it was agreed between the parties, by desire of the said Thomas Winter, pursuer, that the said cause should be heard and brought to end before the judges and legislators of the town of Tralsound only, to which the said William Kerr voluntarily and thankfully assented and agreed. Of which all and sundry the premises the said William Kerr asked the present public instrument to be made for him by me, notary public, subscribing. These things were done at the foresaid town of Leith about the eleventh hour of the forenoon, in the year, month, day, and pontificate above written, in presence of Mr Robert Pringle rector of Morham; Mr Thomas Strachan vicar of Boncle; Alexander Crichton, and John Leggat, with divers other witnesses to the premises specially called and required.]

[To all and sundry to whose notice the present letters shall come; the Provost, Bailies, and Councillors of the Burgh of Edinburgh, within the Kingdom of Scotland, greeting in the Saviour of all,—Know you all that before us, on the day of the date of these presents, a letter of reprisal or marque of the most excellent and serene prince and our lord James IV., by the grace of God the most invincible King of Scots, given under his privy seal, written on parchment, sealed with red wax impressed on a white ground, was on behalf and in name of Robert Barton, presented and produced, of which the tenor, word for word, follows and runs thus :— JAMES, by the grace of God King of Scots, to our beloved servants John Barton and Robert Barton, sons of our late beloved servant John Barton, shipmaster, and other shipmasters, our lieges and subjects, and others in the company of the said John and Robert for the time [greeting] : Some pirates of the nation of Portugal attacked a ship of our late most illustrious ancestor, which, under God, the late John commanded, and with a fleet of many ships compelled it to surrender, and robbed it of merchandise of very great value, and stripped it of its armament. On account of which our most serene father, in satisfaction of equity and justice, transmitted his complaint to the King of Portugal, and required him to cause the goods which had been seized to be restored as accorded of justice. Those goods, accordingly, which were extant, were restored in virtue of his demand. In which transaction our said ancestor, being denied justice in full, decreed letters of marque and reprisal against all of the nation of Portugal, as accords of justice. We, moreover, following the footsteps of our late most dearly beloved ancestor, and declaring such letters just, in like manner grant and concede by these presents to you, John and Robert aforesaid, and our other lieges and subjects who shall be in your company for the time, our letters of marque or reprisal, that you may receive and bring back to us from any men whomsoever of the nation of Portugal, on account of the justice aforesaid being denied, to the extent of three thousand crowns of money of France. So however that those Portuguese to whom our said most serene father or we formerly granted special letters of licence and immunity shall remain with their ships and merchandise uninjured; and we forbid that these letters of marque and reprisal be on any pretence extended to the same, being under our protection. Given under our Privy seal at our Burgh of Edinburgh, the twenty-fifth day of the month of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand four hundred and ninety-four, and in the seventh of our reign :

Literamarque. Bartoun.

And as after reading said original letter of reprisal or marque, and due comparison with the present copy and transumpt, we have found them faithfully to agree with each other, therefore, we the said Provost, Bailies, and Councillors decree

that full faith may henceforth be everywhere accorded to the present transumpt as to the original principal letters, if they shall be produced in court. In faith and testimony of all and sundry the premises, we have ordered the seal of cause of our said Burgh to be affixed to these presents, at the said Burgh, the sixth day of the month of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand five hundred and eight.]

[On the twenty-seventh day of the month of February, about the twelfth hour of the day, in the year of our Lord 1510, the thirteenth indiction, the eighth year of the pontificate of Pope Paul the Second. Master Gavin Dowglas, provost of the Collegiate Church of St Giles of Edinburgh, the official, and all the prebendaries thereof, in respect of the failure today in the celebration with accustomed honour of the mass of the most holy blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, firmly promised in future to celebrate and sing the same on every Wednesday, under the penalties for every week day for each person twopence, and for a festival fourpence; and if all should fail, the prebendaries should pay one merk to the common good of the confraternity of the Holy Blood, and they should not have the privilege of synod in any day to excuse from the said service. And the official, in name of the other prebendaries, protested that if it shall happen, upon taking account of the money which may be accumulated of the said confraternity, it amounts to a large sum, that they shall have a little of it for their own refreshment, the service being first done in this manner.[1] These things were done in the chapter chapterly convened about the foresaid hour. Testibus, domino Georgeo Lauder de Halton militi, domino Adam Spens, domino Johanne Jakson, notariis, magistro Clemente Fernle, Vincentio Strathauchin, Willelmo Paterson, Andrea Gram, Andrea Rowat, et Thoma Arnot, seriando.

[On the twenty-fourth day of April, etc., at six o'clock afternoon, In presence of me notary-public and the witnesses subscribing, an honourable man William Hoppar, one of the bailies of the Burgh of Edinburgh passed to the common muir of the same, and there, by virtue of his office and of the special faculty and licence of our supreme Lord the King to the underwritten precept, exhibited and granted to the Provost and Bailies of the Burgh, gave corporal state and possession and heritable sasine of a piece of waste land containing as follows:—Towards the Burgh Loch of the said burgh the half of an acre of land for houses and buildings to be erected thereon, between the lands of [blank] on the east, and the lands of [blank] on the west. Also of one piece of arable land annexed thereto, lying towards the south, containing two acres and the half of an acre arable land, lying with the larger measure, because that piece is in part barren, and not so fertile and fruitful as the other lands lying thereabout. For every tenandry in the said muir should contain in whole three acres of land only to be built and cultivated, unless there be a reasonable cause of barrenness and unfruitfulness, according to the tenor of the charter to be made thereupon, under the common seal of the Burgh.

The like was done to a noble man Sir Alexander Lauder of Blyth, provost of Edinburgh; also to Adam Carkettel; also to Mr Walter Layng; also to Walter Young, bailie of the said Burgh; also to John Adamson; also to John Watson. [On the third day of the month of February, in the year of our Lord 1517, the sixth indiction, in the fifth year of the pontificate of our Lord Leo the Tenth, by divine providence Pope. In presence of honourable men, the Baillies, Councillors, and Deacons of crafts of the Community of the Burgh of Edinburgh, and representing the other honest men, the burgesses of the said burgh, assembled in the Tolbooth thereof, and of us notaries public and witnesses underwritten, personally appeared an honourable man, John Hammiltone, at that time President of the said burgh, sitting in judgment in the foresaid Tolbooth, who produced and caused openly to be read before them a certain writing directed to him and the baillies of the said burgh by a noble and mighty lord James Earl of Arrane, Lord Hammilton, one of the Regents of the kingdom of Scotland, and Provost of the foresaid burgh, signed as appeared with his hand; by which writing it was commanded by the foresaid Lord Provost, that the foresaid President and Bailies should elect immediately, with advice of the councillors and community of the said burgh, a deputy or sufficient writer in the office of common clerk of the said burgh, under the principal common clerk, in place of the deceased Henry Strathauchin, who, while he lived, was writer and deputy under the principal clerk, as in the said writing is more fully contained. By virtue whereof he required the votes of the said baillies, councillors, masters or deacons of crafts, and other honest men of the said community in the premises. And immediately an honourable man, Master Adam Ottirburne, common clerk of the said Burgh, sitting among others in council, rose up, asserting himself to be common clerk of the said burgh, previously elected thereto by common consent of the provost, bailies, councillors, and community thereof, with power of appointing deputes therein, as in the letters under the common seal of the said burgh thereupon made to him, is, as he asserted, more fully contained, and offered to officiate in the said office of common clerk in his proper person, and to serve the said provost, baillies, councillors, and community therein with all faithfulness and humility; wherefore he affirmed that no other deputy ought in any way to be elected or instituted in his foresaid office without his consent; and a long discussion being thereupon had between the president, baillies, councillors, and community, at length they proceeded to vote. The following honest men gave their votes for the said Master Adam in the premises, in the manner which follows in the common tongue. First, Francis Touris, etc., ut supra. And moreover, the populace there assembled being asked for their votes by the president, for the most part confirmed the councillors, and acknowledged the said Master Adam by his surname with a loud voice—Ottirburne, Ottirburne. These things were done in the Tolbooth of the said burgh about the first hour before noon, being there present decerned and ordained.- Whereupon in all and singular, the said master of faculty asked the present public instrument or these public instruments, to be made for him by me, notary-public subscribing. These things took place in the foresaid consistory in the tenth hour before noon, or thereabout, in the year, month, day, indiction and pontificate above-written. Present in the same place, the venerable and discreet men, Masters and Sirs Richard Cok, James Kennedy, James Huntar, Thomas Maxwell, William Dik, and James Stanton, notaries-public, with divers other witnesses to the premises called and summoned at the same time.

And I, Thomas Foulis, clerk of the diocese of St Andrews, notary-public, by sacred apostolic and imperial authority, and scribe of and before the same lord Official, because I was personally present, with the before-named witnesses, at the production and reading of the aforesaid letter, and at the collation thereof with the present transumpt, and the interponing of the decree of the foresaid lord Official, and all and sundry the premises aforesaid, whilst they were so said, transacted and done, as is premised, and saw, heard, knew, and took note that they were all and sundry so said and done; therefore, being asked and requested, afterwards executed this present public instrument, drawn up in the form of a transumpt, faithfully written by other hands, and have signed it with my sign and name, used and wont, along with the appending of the Official seal, in pledge and attestation of all and singular the premises.]

[Remission for insurrection.] [JAMES, by the grace of God King of Scots: To the venerable father in Christ and our beloved councillor, George Abbot of our monastery of Holy Rood, keeper of our privy seal, greeting:—Whereas we, with the advice, authority, and consent of the lords of our secret council, chosen thereto by the three estates of our kingdom in our parliament; Considering the good, faithful, and gratuitous service done to us by our lovites the Provosts, Bailies, Council and Community of our Burgh of Edinburgh, from the time of the decease of our late most noble father of good memory, on whose soul may God have mercy, as also the great injury, trouble and wrath of the nobility with which they were oppressed on account of our service. Of our special favour we remit generally and in kind to the Provost, Bailies, Council and whole Community of our said Burgh, and every one of them now actually inhabiting the said burgh, all rancour of our mind, royal suit, and all action which we conceived, had, or could have in any way towards them or any of them for their treasonable insurrection against the deceased John Lord Fleming, our Great Chamberlain, when sitting in judgment in the Tolbuith of our said Burgh in the execution of his office of Chamberlain. As also, for the treasonable insurrection and convocation of our lieges against our Chancellor and the lords of our privy council, and resisting our cousin, James Earl of Arran, Lord Hamilton, from entering our foresaid Burgh, at the Nether Bow of the same, by beating him back, he being at the time our Lieutenant and Provost of the said Burgh. And for all other actions, transgressions, crimes and offences whatsoever, committed by the said Provost, Bailies, Council and Community, or any of them now actually residing within our said Burgh, in any times byegone, until the day of the date of these presents, by whomsoever committed or perpetrated, treasonable insurrection against our royal person, murder, fire-raising, ravishing of women and common theft excepted. And we will and grant that this our general remission to the said Provost, Bailies, Council and Community foresaid, and each of them, shall be of such force, strength and effect as if the same were made and granted to each one singly by name and surname, specially expressed by our letter of remission under our great seal. We therefore require and command that our precept under our said privy seal be directed to the right reverend father in Christ and our beloved councillor, James Archbishop of St Andrews, our Chancellor, for preparing our letters of remission, one or more, under our great seal, to the said Provost, Bailies, Council and Community upon the premises, in due form of our chancellary. TABLES OF TOLLS AND CUSTOMS.

[The words within parentheses are not in the Assisa de Tolloneis.]

[The following Table of Customs is engrossed in the volume numbered as the first of the series of Council Records,[1] and which consists mainly of extracts from old records of the burgh not now extant. No date is there assigned to the table. It appears likewise in the volume of extracts preserved in the Advocates' Library,[2] and bears to have been transcribed from "ane lowse leiff quhair is the daitt 15 February 1468," under which date it is entered. It is also engrossed, with little variation, in the Charter of Customs granted by King James the Third, of date 16th November 1482, under the title of "Greit customes and dewties that the thesaurare of the toune ressaues and takes of strangearis and vnfremen, of schips and guidis cummand in at the port of Leyth, and enterit in the tounis buikis, togidder with the escheit of the samen quhair it beis found vnenterit of ony vnfremen."].

[A Table of Tolls and Customs, bearing the title "Noua Custuma," is given in the first volume of the Council Records,[1] and also in the volume of Extracts preserved in the Advocates' Library.[2] In the former, it immediately follows the table of duties of the customs given above. In the latter, it stands unconnected with any other tariff. In neither is any date assigned to this Table, which seems to be a not very accurate transcript, with some variation, of the greater part of the Table of "Petty Customs called Toll," printed under the title "Assisa de Tolloneis," in the Acts of the Parliaments of Scotland,[3] and in the Ancient Laws and Customs of the Burghs of Scotland.[4] The Assisa de Tolloneis there given bears to be the "assize of King David, King of Scots, made at Newcastle-upon-Tyne by his whole community of Scotland, barons, burgesses and others, concerning the Tolls and Customs of Burghs," and Professor Cosmo Innes is of opinion that it can be traced back, on good evidence, to that reign, "when Lothian and Northumberland were subject to the same law and government, and when the tariff of Newcastle-upon-Tyne was identical with that of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and collected by the same authority—that of the good King David."[5] The opinion thus expressed is confirmed and illustrated by the comparison which he has instituted in his preface to the first volume of the Acts of the Parliaments of Scotland between the toll or custom of Newcastle, as given in the Northumberland Chartulary, with the tariff established for Berwick and the Scotch ports, as set forth in the Assisa de Tolloneis.

Some of the customs given in the Edinburgh table are different from those specified in the Assisa de Tolloneis, which also contains several articles not given in the Edinburgh table. The points of difference, so far as material, and the additional articles, are shown in the Table here given. Those portions printed in italics are not in the Edinburgh Table, but are taken from the Assisa.

Sections x., xi., and xii. of the Assisa de Tolloneis, as given in the Ancient Laws and Customs of the Burghs,[6] are entirely left out.]

Acts of the Parliaments of Scotland, vol. i., p. 66, Appendix xi.-xiii., pp. 155-158.

Lord Hailes conjectures that a Provincial Council was held, simultaneously with a Council of the Estates, at Edinburgh on this date, to grant the obligation for the 100,000 merks sterling, which the clergy undertook to pay for the ransom of the King. [Historical Memorials of Provincial Councils of Scotland, in Annals of Scotland, vol. iii., pp. 248, 249.] But this conjecture is opposed by Chalmers [Caledonia, vol. ii., unpublished chapter, "On the King and Parliament of Scotland," p. 45, referred to by Dr Joseph Robertson in Statuta Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ, pref., p. 76].

[1] "The Seinye" or Diocesan Synod of St Andrews seems, after the beginning of the 14th century, to have been usually held either at St Andrews or at Edinburgh. When the Synod sat at Edinburgh it assembled in the conventual church of Holyrood. The time of meeting was, as at St Andrews, immediately after Easter. [Statuta Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ, pref., 184, footnote.]

[72.] CHARTER by KING JAMES THE THIRD, under his Great Seal, whereby, in consideration of the faith, loyalty, love, good-will and cordial service which the office-bearers of the Burgh of Edinburgh, the Provost, Bailies, Dean of Guild, Treasurer, Common clerk, Councillors and the whole Community of the said burgh had, with his brother Alexander Duke of Albany, rendered to his Majesty, at the peril of their lives, by freeing him from prison in the Castle of Edinburgh, and of the singular love he had towards the said Provost, Bailies, Clerk, Counsellors and Community, and for their free labours and services done and performed to the King, His Majesty gave granted and perpetually confirmed to the said Provost, Bailies, Clerk, Council, and Community, and their successors, the office of Sheriff within the Burgh for ever, to be exercised by the Provost for the time as Sheriff, and by the Bailies for the time as Sheriffs-depute conjunctly and severally; with full power to hold Courts, to punish transgressors not only by banishment but by death, to appoint officers of Court, and to do everything else appertaining to the office of Sheriff; as also to apply to their own proper use the fines and escheats arising out of the exercise of the said office; in respect of which they were taken bound to cause a funeral mass to be celebrated in the Collegiate Church of St. Giles on the 3d and 4th days of August annually, for the weal of the souls of the King and his predecessors and successors. And in respect that the process of the Four Courts of the said Burgh was tedious and slow, the said Provost, Bailies, &c., were empowered to appoint and hold a peremptory Court of twenty-one days whensoever necessity required. Farther the King empowered the said Provost, bailies, &c., in all time coming, to frame make and ordain statutes and acts within the said Burgh for the good government and common weill thereof, and to punish the breakers thereof at their discretion. Dated at Edinburgh 16th November, in the twenty-third year of the King's reign (1482.)
